Dear Robert Brown,

I am sending this letter to inquire about the decisions to continue hiring more staff within Veles Laboratory. As I've made clear in the past, I believe the hiring of more staff, especially people with personal connections to one another. It creates more unneeded risk than necessary.

I made this clear to you in April, 2018, when [REDACTED] hired his wife, [REDACTED]. In August, 2018, when you and [REDACTED] hired [REDACTED], [REDACTED], [REDACTED], and [REDACTED]. In February, 2019, while I was on leave, when you hired [REDACTED] and [REDACTED].

And now, [REDACTED] has hired his niece, [REDACTED]. I know [REDACTED] trusts her, and you trust [REDACTED]. But she has no experience in this sort of field. She struggles to hold her own job, and the only reason [REDACTED] trusts her is because they're related.

I am sending this letter to strongly urge you to reconsider the amount of staff. At the least, if more staff are hired, I will have to turn in my resignation.

Sincerely,

HANA STONE
